

Introduction to Brainspotting

A Focused Mindfulness Tool for Healing

What is Brainspotting?

Brainspotting is a powerful, focused mindfulness treatment that works by using eye position and dual attunement to identify, process, and release core neurophysiological emotional/body pain from trauma, dissociation, addiction, etc. Brainspotting can also enhance peak performance in athletes and creative professionals.

Brainspotting functions as a neurobiological tool to support the clinical healing relationship. While there is no replacement for a mature, nurturing therapeutic presence and the ability to engage clients in a safe and trusting relationship, Brainspotting offers a rapid healing experience so clients are back in their lives, functioning at their highest, as quickly as possible.

Learn about Brainspotting

This presentation will introduce you to Brainspotting, including a demonstration, and resources for further information and training. The combination of mindfulness, current neuroscience and intuitive relational presence makes Brainspotting a wonderful tool to augment any therapeutic training or skill set.

Katherine Allen, MA, LMFT is a licensed Marriage and Family Therapist with over 12 years experience. I was introduced to Brainspotting after the tragic Sandy Hook incident, where I am a local therapist. I have been a part of David Grand's personal supervision group for over 4 years now, meeting monthly with the developer of this therapy, and have reached the top training level as a Certified Consultant, and I am an approved Supervisor of Brainspotting.

I am proud and eager to bring this amazing healing tool to the Upper Valley and to help local residents heal faster and more completely than has been possible until now.
